

Quarter 1, 2017
Week 4 Summary

Its hard to believe we are already halfway through our first quarter. The second quarter syllabus has been finalized and was sent last night via eblast - please check that email for more information.

On Wednesday the students spent part of their evening with the Colorado College Safety Officers, Jon and Tyler. The officers talked with the students about safety at home and in the community. They also demonstrated a few self-defense techniques and provided students the opportunity to try out and practice these techniques. All of the students participated with vigor. Jon invited the students to attend any of the weekly classes they lead, if students are interested in more training. The classes are offered on Tuesday mornings and afternoons on the CC campus. If you are interested in more details please let me know and I can connect you with Jon.

In addition to the safety training, we reviewed our discussions and activity from last week and students shared some ideas about conversation starters for getting to know someone new.

Next week the students will view entertaining and educational video clips on Friendship Skills by James Stanfield. The viewing will be followed by group activities to discuss and practice the skills observed.

If you have not returned your signed photo release form, please return it by next week or let me know if you prefer your student not be photographed. I have additional copies for those of you who were not in class when they were distributed.

Warmly,

Linda
